More information on malaria and how the donation in your honor will help:

Approximately one million children die in Africa from malaria each year. That's 3000 children dying every day, while many more are sickened. Long-lasting insecticide treated bed nets spread over the beds of the most at risk—infants, children and pregnant women—can protect these individuals from the mosquitoes that carry the malaria parasites.

The Baby NETwork, in partnership with Malaria No More, is a grassroots organization dedicated to (1) increasing donations to provide bed nets to send to Africa by honoring newborn babies, children, grandchildren, nieces and nephews, (2) raising the awareness of the serious impact of malaria on the children of Africa and (3) encouraging others to get involved.
